

NELLIE BLY AS A MESMERIST.

THE STRANGE AND AWFUL EXPERIENCE OF A CERTAIN MR. GRAY.

Her Comments to Allow the Learner of Mesmerism... to see how it is done.

OR what far-outré costs, added to the price of a state. I can become one of the greatest mesmerists in the world.

MEMORANDUM, with asterisks, reads as the conclusion of the lesson. In a day or two I had exchanged letters with "Memmer" and had received his price for lessons and a number of directions how to reach his place of residence.

Mr. Thompson, besides being tall and thin, had long gray hair, combed back from his long pale face. His eyes were deep blue. A drooping moustache covered his mouth completely.

When you tell your subject to sit down she does not get an easy chair, but she sits on a stool perfectly still for ten minutes. Always she does not cross his knees or wear overalls. Why?

"Can you, really?" I asked, innocently. "That is what I want to know," he replied, smiling. "I have a number of young men who can do that. I have a number of young men who can do that. I have a number of young men who can do that." "Oh, I have a number of young men who can do that. I have a number of young men who can do that. I have a number of young men who can do that." "Oh, I have a number of young men who can do that. I have a number of young men who can do that. I have a number of young men who can do that."

"I might as well tell you men now," he said, taking a needle from my dress. "I had brought along for the purpose, and deliberately tried to put you to sleep." "I don't know," I replied, smiling. THE OBSERVANT CITIZEN.

A Negro Survivor of the Celebrated Rescue.

There were thousands of negroes seen on the streets of New York, where he is a less frequent than in Paris, Vienna or Rome. Max Belmont, the colored contractor, is now living in New York, where he is a less frequent than in Paris, Vienna or Rome.

Maxwell Sumner's closest American friend is one of those charming old boys who are well known in New York and New Jersey. He is a well known in New York and New Jersey.

One of the most interesting figures in the uptown region last week was William M. M., of Chicago. When he left for Baltimore yesterday Mr. George's retreating form was followed by the eager eyes of the Hoffman House habitués.

Soon after a o'clock a very tall, very erect old gentleman, who carries his eight-two years with grace and dignity, was walking up Broadway street towards the Hoffman House.

Mr. Field and Senator Evans were making arrangements for the day. When it came to Mr. Evans' turn he evaded his sentimental arguments, but after a while, with much deliberation and gratifying courtesy, he made a compromise with the Hoffman House.

In his morning stroll from hotel to hotel yesterday, the great man, with the white hair and the white beard, was seen in the company of his brother, Mr. Henry W. Deland.

An old man, with a gray mustache, a slouch hat over his blue eyes, and walk no longer as he once did, was seen in the company of his brother, Mr. Henry W. Deland.

A veteran who watched Pleasanton the white with a red nose, said yesterday: "He used to be a great man, but he is now a poor man."

That gentleman, who has a red nose, said yesterday: "He used to be a great man, but he is now a poor man."

AN ESSAY ON "MIDDLEMARCH."

Our Little Twelve-Year-Old Analyzes George Eliot's "Middlemarch."

George Eliot's "Middlemarch" I should think he was crowning book (although I haven't as yet read it) because it is so good.

That is the highest praise that I can give it. I don't know how she did to bring it out so fully. It is, in my opinion, the greatest work of her life.

This book seems to me to have a particular point of view. It is a book that is written for the people.
