

WHAT RIEL SAYS.

While riding into camp, expressed his captors as follows: "I do not trouble will be without result, as the minds of the farmers will be regarded in some degree of attention."

He said that his books and papers had been burned, he said: "I am glad, this is that I am not the actual leader in the rebellion. I have been encouraged by my good standing at and around the river, who invited me over from the north."

Asked if they would give him a fair trial or martial? Armstrong told him he would be tried by martial law. Riel took a long breath, but said nothing. He said that he was not the headman in the rebellion and then commenced praying. He made the sign of the cross. He asked whether his family would be blown up with that gun crowd (meaning the Gatling), and he said he didn't want to be selfish, but none of the half-breeds would die for his own family. He then commenced praying again. In appearance he was a common half-breed, and looks unimproved. He spends most of his time in a wandering manner and in the capture of Riel will end the rebellion, the half-breeds are concerned. A number of Indians, coming from the West to help Riel, were met by half-breeds, and then the war was over.

A TIME TO WEEP.

Most of the prisoners were placed on board to-day. In parting from their families were many pitiful scenes of women holding up babies for fathers to kiss, and others belonging to the rebel Government searched to-day. Minutes show that the Duck Lake fight was a premeditated one and that the rebels were thoroughly prepared for General Middleton's movement from the time we left Qu'Appelle. Numerous extracts from Toronto, Montreal and other journals were also referred to Riel, to the strength of Middleton's command, the quantity of ammunition and the amount of forage on hand according to the minutes, the movement of the rebels depended.

It is reported that Colonel Irvine is threatened by the Indians and half-breeds is now to have been quite untrue. Intense emotion is expressed at his non-appearance.

In consequence of further communications from the Princess Louise committee have been sent to the Dominion authorities, no surplus will be sent out by means of the North-West, and the whole contributions will be expended in the purchase of medical stores and necessities for the wounded men.

Chief Justice, Wallbridge, was asked to-day what course would be adopted in regard to Riel. He said that, according to law, Riel should have to be tried in the district or where he was captured. He could be brought to Winnipeg or sent to Ottawa. The Dominion Government might issue a writ of habeas corpus and send up judges to try him.

WRAPS FOR COOL EVENINGS.

How the Darlings Can Keep Comfortable During This Changeable Weather.

To walk along the streets and look at the passers-by the pedestrian would be led to believe that there is but one kind of spring wrap made, and that is the black brocade article trimmed with cheville fringe. But when the many beautiful ones on exhibition in the shop windows are seen, surprise is felt that all cling to the common black one. Parisian wraps are going out of date for general use. The light velvet grenadines are taking their place. The change is assuredly for the better, as far as variety goes. Wraps are all small, but others have long tabs. Some of the most handsome on sale now are:

A velvet grenadine, with beaded hernani and beaded chenille fringe. An entire wrap of beaded hernani, trimmed with French lace, is exquisite. A beaded hernani, lace trimmed, beaded with jet fringe and lined with changeable silk, is a prize. The light brown and gray, with chenille fringes to match and lined with changeable silk, can be worn with any costume. Some of the most stylish are trimmed with woolen lace to match in color, with a cascade up front and back and trimmed real full around the bottom.

Shawls are very desirable for wraps. They are neat to carry over the arm and easily thrown around the shoulders. No trouble is experienced in putting on a shawl—no getting the arms through the wrong place and failing to find the waist band. Cashmere and Chudda shawls, in many beautiful colors, with fringed outedge, are very durable. They also come in black. They are quite cheap, and will be worn all summer, especially by ladies going to the country or seashore. Parisian shawls are very fine and come in many colors. The black and white is the newest. They are used for carriage wear or worn on extremely cool evenings.

Embroidered capes are much worn by fashionable people, and can be bought for from $6 to $30. For looks, but affording no warmth, the lovely lace and chenille capes, to wear over summer costumes, are just too pretty.

A beautiful morning wrapper can be made of blue Khyber cloth, in the back a Watteau pleat, and a cascade of wide Egyptian lace from top to bottom in front; a narrow knife pleating finishes the bottom. The latest material is called Etamine, for summer dresses. It will be called "perfectly lovely." It is thin and veil-like, dotted with bright colored worsted. It comes in patterns, with embroidered trimmings to match. A very handsome one has fringe, and makes a lovely drapery. The cloth comes in double-width, and is durable.

Reducing Summer Hotel Wages.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—A meeting of proprietors of summer resort hotels was held here yesterday to take combined action in favor of a reduction of wages for hotel help this summer. Nearly all the hotels of Newport, Long Branch, Saratoga, Richfield, Cape May, the Catskills, Thousand Islands and Manhattan are represented in the combination. N. B. Barry, of the Glenham Hotel, New York, and proprietor of Howland's Long Branch, is at the head of the movement. It has been determined to limit the wages of colored waiters not to exceed $20 a month; white waiters, $25; bell boys, $12, and chamber girls, $8 a month. Cooks and bakers are to be reduced from 10 to 15 per cent., and all other hotel employes in proportion.

Coal Miners' Demand Refused.

CUMBERLAND, May 16.—The conference between 26 delegate miners and a committee of George's Creek operators took place to-day at the Queen City Hotel in this city, which resulted in the companies refusing to grant any of the four requests, viz., an advance from 40 to 50 cents per ton; 10 hours a day all the year around; reduction in smelting from 1 to 1/2 cent per ton, and semi-monthly payments. Charles N. Mayer, President of the Consolidation Coal Company, was spokesman for the companies, and Hector Cochrane, who is a member of the present Legislature, on part of miners.
